
A Botanical Year

Calendars and Seasons

There are reasons to celebrate each day of the year - holidays that are plant-related and a selection of birthdates for people who have contributed to our appreciation of plants and gardens. Take a moment to search the web for comments about the accomplishments of these many people on their day...

Julian Calendar

A simple goal has been to give you a botanical reason to celebrate each day of the year. Pursing this goal I scoured resources of all kinds, most particularly the internet, in order to find a person or event corresponding to each day of the year.

The results of that quest are given in the following tables, which include birthdays for several hundred people, as well as annual holidays and festivals that are plant related. Most people included are botanists, horticulturists, landscape designers, and artists. In some cases, the entry may seem to be a stretch, but in every instance the person included deserves recognition for work, study, dedication, or contributions to the appreciation and understanding of plants and gardens.

In practically every instance, information required to understand the reason a person is on this list can be found through interrogating the internet, most particularly Wikipedia or web pages of academic and professional organizations.

Unfortunately, scores of excellent candidates could not be included in this list because I could not determine a birthdate. But those people are in a more comprehensive list, and will be celebrated based on year of birth in a future edition of The Reader.

This does not mean the search is complete. Please feel free to send suggestions as to people whose birthdays might be included. Mail can be sent to [planted\[at\]huntington.org](mailto:planted[at]huntington.org).
